

What Will We Do?

What will we do without choir, my favourite night of the week.
That's the time I forget all my troubles, meet old friends and new friends, enjoy homemade treats.
Singing together's a blessing, good for the spirit and yet...
If COVID nineteen keeps us six feet apart, our choir will become a quartet.

Chorus

What will we do without choir and the wonderful music we sing?
Beethoven and Bach, gospel and rock, music is everything.

Some nights I'm the best in my section and sing ev'ry note perfectly.
Sometimes I need help from the singers around me to help me to get back on key.
No divas or slackers, just music and laughter, our choir's a community.
Some have been singing forever and they help the new ones to learn which chair they can take, which cookies to bake, which line to sing and which page to turn.
We all love to sing in the choir and sweet harmony's our desire.
And on a good night when the moon is just right, we sound like the Mormon Tabernacle Choir

Chorus

What will we do without choir and the wonderful music we sing?
Beethoven and Bach, gospel and rock, music is everything.
